JACKSON JONES

It features an entertaining pavilion orientated to perfectly capture the stunning northerly views - an idyllic place to gather with family and friends to absorb the serenity of your natural surrounds.

There's room to accommodate the extended family within this substantial property. At its heart is a central living, dining and lounge space, with sliding glass doors on either side of an open fireplace framing the mountain vistas beyond.

The modern kitchen boasts granite stone countertops, soft-grey custom cabinetry, a sit-up bench, ample pantry and wine rack storage, Bosch dishwasher and a 900mm electric Smeg oven with six-burner gas hob.

On one side of the house is a lovely master bedroom offering mountain views from every window and serviced by a walk-through wardrobe and good-sized ensuite.

On the other are four good-sized additional bedrooms, creating scope for work-from-home office space without compromising on sleeping accommodation. Two offer expansive views, including a second contender for master suite with its own walk-through wardrobe and ensuite.

A contemporary family bathroom and a well-equipped laundry with courtyard access complete the internal picture.

Power bills are low at 15-17 Capricorn Court thanks to 6.5kW of solar power. Ceiling fans and flyscreens throughout allow the coastal breezes to flow.

There is a 45,000L rainwater tank, and a spring-fed bore supplying pure Cooroy Mountain water which can be used to supplement the tank if you ever run low.

Outside, a roomy remote double garage comes with workbench, storage and a covered walkway to your front porch. There's also a high-roofed double carport catering for additional vehicles, caravans and boats.

A separate external studio, meanwhile, creates the perfect gym, home office or creative arts space - and could be adapted for dual living or Airbnb use.

The private back garden is a haven of established fruit trees, tropical planting, native trees, and level lawns extensive enough for a serious game of footy. It overlooks farmland and paddocks, creating the feel of a rural property without the hard work.

If you're looking for a hinterland lifestyle property with views, peace, privacy and space for the kids and pets to run free, it doesn't get any better than this.
